BLANKET BARGAINS

Mild weather will not last long.

Neither will the PRESENT Bargains in Blankets.

We placed our orders with makers during a time of general depression---when orders were scarce and prices of raw materials at the lowest point---with the result that we have secured the most carefully-made goods at the lowest prices. In addition to these we have a number of choice blankets carried over from last season, slightly soiled; to dispose of them quickly have marked them down at least 25 per cent. below prices generally prevailing.

Prominent Citizens Denounce the Vote Giving the Barber Asphalt Company the Right to Pave Main Street-The Councilmen Who Are Willing to Throw Light on the Subject Are to Be Interviewed.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

PITTSTON, Pa., Sept. 14. to pave Main street with asphalt has caused much surprise and indignation about the city, and has been the main topic of conversa-tion today among those interested in public welfare.

Councilmen Tigue and Hennigan state that they are prepared to sub-stantiate their former statements before a proper committee of citizens at any time, and it is probable that their testimony will be heard by the citizens advisory committee at an early

The following opinions gathered by a TRIBUNE representative will give an idea of the sentiment of the people of Pittston upon the paving question:

John B. Law—"I think it an outrage, and all the more strange that the council should decide on asphalt, after having asked and obtained the opinion of the advisory committee." When of opinion was for the brick pave the council should respect the opinion.

Inferentially I conclude the advisory committee were sufficiently well informed of the wishes of the public on the pave question, having been unof-ficially interested in the matter for the past three months and acting by invi-Hosiery tation in conjunction with the country.

Therefore, they being in touch with the property owners of the borough, especially those on Main street, should have pecially those on Main street, should have commanded the respect of our council and should have influenced the council in their official action. Had they we would have brick." John Jordan, justice of the peace: "I think the council did not treat the committee with the respect due them. In my judgment brick is the best pave and the council made, a mistake in adoptthe council made a mistake in adopting the asphalt. As regard the statements made by Mr. Tigue I think Mr. Langan should make him prove them so far as he is concerned." O. W. St. John—"The council should have selected brick and their action in not having done so more than sur-prises me, in fact it is strange, very strange. The charges of corruption made by Councilman Tigue should be taken up by the advisory committee and pushed until every vestige of their truth or falsity is established. It is a

Councilman Tigue—"Yes, the charges I made I again repeat and stand prepared to substantiate them before any tribunal, by reputable witnesses either in court or out of court. Conneilman Hennigan - "All that

Mr. Tigue has said I am willing to substantiate." "Mr. Hennegan, was any similar offer such as Mr. Tigue refers to made to you?" "Yes."

Councilman Lynott-"In all probability brick it would have been had not there been so much talk of boodle. The only man who approached me was a well known detective of the Lehigh Valley railroad, who was desirous of having the material shipped over that road. I was not offered any money; never saw any.

John Connell-I won't pay for as phalt, if I can get out of it, because I can't afford it. I am willing to have a good road, but I don't favor putting down something I can't pay for. I am willing to get up a petition and present it to the council protesting against the Honesdale is the centre of an indus ry whose wares are sold over a large territory—namely, the ent glass trade. Within a radius of a few miles there are three factories whose names are synonymous with the cut glass trade. These firms are J. S. O'Connor of Hawey, C. Dorfinger & Sons, White Mills, ley, C. Dorfinger & Sons, White Mills, and T. B. Clark & Co., Honesdale. To those who have never witnessed the process of cutting, a few words of explanation will be interesting. A description of the last named factory will be a description of all. The glass used for sutting is very heavy and thick. heavy and thick. After first outlining the design to be cut, the bowl or other the design to be cut, the bowl or other disk first undergoes the rough cutting. For this first process a steel wheel is used. The bowl is held against the revolving wheel, into which a stream of wet sand is constantly falling. This was a deep at the process is constantly falling. makes a deep cut. This process is con-tinued until the design is entirely cut out. The bowl is then carried to another department for the smoothing process. For the latter a stone wheel is used, on which there is a constant flow of water. The bowl is now perfectly smooth and is polished on a wooden wheel. In this connection it might be said the wooden wheel now generally used, is made and patented by Wyman Kimble, of Honesdale. After the bowl is polished it is placed in fine saw dust until it is ready for cleaning, after which it is inspected very carefully and packed for shipment. The least flaw or smallest speck of iron in the glass spoils it as first quality. Glass so tainted are called seconds. Pure pieces only bear the
